

BRENT COMBER

TAFONI 2 Solid

The coastal shoreline is a unique place where land and ocean overlap. When the conditions are right, the persistent and unyielding tidal forces can carve soft caverns and organic hollows into the bedrock itself. Individual pockets are known as Tafone; groupings of these sculptural rock formations are called Tafoni. My solid wood benches celebrate this unique phenomenon that occurs where on the borders where land meets water.

TF-2A Tafoni 2 is shown in douglas fir with a clear hardwax oil finish.
